To Combat Bias In Industry

The National Conference of Christians and Jews will soon set up machinery to combat religious prejudice in the industrial field, as it has previously done in educational and community activities fields. At a meeting of the national board at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, Roger W. Straus, chairman of the board of the American Smelting and Refining Company and co-chairman of the organization, introduced a resolution, which was adopted, to bring brotherhood into the industrial field by combatting religious prejudices between employer and employee.

Mr. Straus asked specifically that a special committee be formed of industrial and labor leaders, that the new program be carried on by staff members of the national conference, and a substantial budget be allowed.

Thomas E. Braniff, president of Braniff Airways, presided at a luncheon at which speakers included Alfred A. May, of the Ford Motor Company; Kermit Eby, of the University of Chicago; Dwight Palmer, of General Cable Corporation, and Mr. Straus.

The Rev. Joseph Cantillon, S.J., chairman of the department of religion, St. Peter's College, Jersey City, suggested that prejudice would be lessened if religious leaders declared a moratorium on the "gnat controversies" in religious fields.

"I wish, for example," he said, "that priests would stop defending Francisco Franco, while Protestant ministers would forget the Spanish Inquisition when discussing Spain. Similarly I wish rabbis who denounce anti-Semitism would also denounce anti-Christianity. The world is on fire, but we are wondering about the little brush fires in our neighborhood."

Reports Women Play Big Part In War Effort

A month's stay in Israel, during which she travelled from Tel Aviv to Haifa and across the Emek south to Jerusalem convinced Mrs. Israel Goldstein, president of Pioneer Women, the Women's Labor Zionist Organization of America, that were it not for the remarkable work of the women of Israel, the war effort of the fledgling nation could not have succeeded.

"The usefulness of women is evident everywhere in the country. They drive jeeps and tractors, work in factories, are shoemakers and carpenters, and do every kind of work that men do insofar as their physical strength permits," she said in an interview at the national offices of Pioneer Women, 45 East 17th Street, New York. Mrs. Goldstein, who left her famous husband, Rabbi Israel Goldstein, behind in Tel Aviv, for work in connection with the World Zionist Executive, returned to New York by airplane.

She went to Israel expressly to see the results of the funds that Pioneer Women have been pouring into the Jewish State in the form of children's institutions, training farms and immigrant women's centers that are operated by the Moatzat Hapoalot, the Working Women's Council, which is the sister organization of Pioneer Women.

"Whenever a boatload of immigrants arrives, we meet them at the dock, accompany them to the Reception Camp, and help them in their temporary establishment," she said. "Then we open a Bet Olot, a house for immigrant women, where they live until they are ready to be on their own. We give them psychological tests, and vocational guidance to determine what their skills are, and train them for future work. I [illegible]

SOLE LOYALTY OF U.S. JEWS IS TO AMERICA, STATES A.J.C. HEAD

While emphasizing that there can be no political identification between American Jews and Israel, Joseph M. Proskauer, president of the American Jewish Committee, asserted at Chicago, Ill., that Jewish people in the U.S. should manifest "a patient, benevolent and utterly sincere approach to the problems of Israel."

Mr. Proskauer, a former Supreme Court Justice in New York, told 125 Jewish leaders, comprising his executive committee, that the AJC "could subscribe to the principle that as Jews and as Americans we wish the State of Israel well."

"We shall do what we properly can do to assist it; but we are no Israelis—we are Americans. Our loyalty is to this country alone, and our relations to Israel must necessarily be governed by these truths," he said.

In stressing the principle of political separation, Mr. Proskauer said that he did not imply the severance of all ties between the Jewish communities of the world and Israel and its citizens.

"Israel, because of the basis upon which it was established, must be able to maintain and considerably increase its population and to create facilities for immigration of those who wish to go there," he went on.

"It is for us in the spirit of brotherhood to aid this new state to become a truly democratic anchorage on the eastern end of the Mediterranean."

Regarding the recommendations made by the late Count Folke Bernadotte regarding Israel, Mr. Proskauer said:

"I do not believe that Count [illegible] recorded his report as [illegible]

[illegible]

Turning over the Negeb to the Arabs, he continued, would deprive the Jews of "the only area they have of developing and providing for the sustenance of hundreds of thousands of Jews—the miserable remnants of surviving European Jews and those Jews in North Africa who are living in grave danger."

The old city of Jerusalem, containing the shrines sacred to Christians, Jews and Moslems, should be internationalized but the new city, "which is predominantly Jewish, should be placed under the control of the State of Israel," he said.

The final session of the two-day meeting also was addressed by Prof. Herman A. Gray, of New York University, chairman of the European Affairs Committee of the AJC, who has just returned from a two-month mission to Europe.

Warning that failure of the denazification program combined with the industrial rebuilding of Germany pointed to a resurgence of Nazism that would again endanger Western democracy, he said that this situation did not concern the Jews because within two years "virtually no Jews will be left in Germany." "But it does concern Western civilization as a whole," he added, "because if Germany goes fascist again it will threaten the democratic way of life throughout the Western world —endangering the churches, labor and the forces of liberal education and democracy everywhere."

The executive committee unanimously went on record urging the United States to give Israel de jure recognition and active support for its admission to the United Nations.

Jacob Blaustein of Baltimore, chairman of the group, expressed hope that the American Government would take a constructive view towards the basic needs of the new state which would help insure its stability and its peaceful existence."

Irving M. Engel, chairman of the administrative and immigration committees of the American Jewish Committee, called for immediate amendments to the Displaced Persons Act of 1948 "to eliminate its discriminating features."

In an address to 100 members of the executive group, representative of every part of the U.S., Mr. Engel emphasized that Jewish and non-Jewish groups had advocated advancing the cut-off date from December, 1945, to April, 1947, in the Displaced Persons Act. The 1945 date, as enacted by Congress, makes eligible for admittance to the U.S. only those immigrants who were in DP camps in Austria, Germany and Italy of that year.

"This amendment of advancing the cut-off date has the support of both President Truman and Governor Dewey. It should be enacted as a bi-partisan measure as soon as Congress convenes next January," he asserted.

Aside from what he described as its discriminatory features, Mr. Engel declared that the DP act was proving difficult to administer.

"Thus far, instead of admitting displaced persons, it has excluded them. That is shown by the fact that although the act went into effect on July 1, not a single displaced person has come in under its provision," he added.

Mr. Engel asserted that the change in the cut-off date would be the only amendment needed in the Displaced Persons Act if efforts of the commission had started a substantial flow of immigrants to the country by next January.

He declared that more and more people are becoming aware of the fact that "our entire immigration system is basically unsound and un-American; it is founded on the hateful doctrine of racism which Hitler developed to its logical conclusion."

During the past eighteen years, he pointed out, the average immigration had been only 20 per cent of the permissible quota of 154,000 a year, and that "under our present immigration legislation quotas not used by natives of the country to whom they are allotted cannot be assigned to other countries and are irretrievably lost."

"As a first step, therefore, we hope that the coming Congress will provide that all unused quotas will not be lost, but will go into a pool to be allocated on a 'first-come-first-served' basis, or some other formula, which will [illegible] equitable [illegible] as well, according to the New York Times.

Jacob Blaustein of Baltimore, chairman of the executive branch, who presided, made public a cablegram from David Ben-Gurion, Premier of Israel, which expressed the hope that the American Jewish Committee's deliberations would "forge even closer ties between American Jewry and Free Israel and enhance the dignity, self-respect and welfare of Jews throughout the world." The cablegram also extended an invitation to former Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. Proskauer, president of the AJC, to visit Palestine.

In reply, Judge Proskauer said that "my colleagues and I look forward to the hope of accepting your invitation to visit Israel in the not-too-distant future."

Turkey Aids Jews To Leave For Israel

Close to 2,000 Turkish Jews received authorization to emigrate to Israel during three days, as compared with 500 exit visas issued to Jews in the five months from last May 15.

It is believed that the increase was the result of secret instructions issued by the Government to the political section of the Istanbul police to put no obstacle in the way of Turkish Jews wanting to go to Israel. These instructions would seem to indicate a marked shift in the Turkish attitude on Palestine, which had been pro-Arab.

Jewish emigration has hitherto been on a small scale and mostly clandestine because of the Turkish Government's desire to maintain a friendly attitude toward the Arabs. It is expected now that Jewish emigration from Turkey will take an estimated 10,000 of the 70,000 Jews living in the country.

Jewish emigrants on line in front of the Istanbul police building cheerfully declared that they were receiving "all kinds of speedy facilities from the Turkish officials."

Although obviously not in keeping with the sentiment of the great majority of Turks, who are Mohammedans and pro-Arab, this shift of policy, neutral observers believe, would be effected smoothly. It will allow the Turkish Government to continue to claim an attitude close to neutrality while it takes into realistic consideration the political and military setbacks that the Arabs have encountered.

As put by a neutral diplomat at Istanbul, the declaration made in Paris by Nedjmeddin Sadak, a Turkish Foreign Minister, sharply denying the possibility of Turkey's

Scientists Help Laborers At Institute

The war in Palestine has delayed the opening of the Weizmann Institute of Science but, barring unforeseen circumstances, this monument to the famous chemist-statesman will be completed and in full operation by next spring. At the moment, scientists and laborers work side by side in its incompleted laboratories. Because of the demands of the Army, there are now more scientists than laborers, and the scientists occasionally have to lend a hand to the laborers.

The institute is situated on a hilltop in the coastal citrus belt, where laden fruit trees meet the eye for almost as far as one can see. Near by are Israel's principal agricultural college and Rehovoth village. On the other side of the hill, in a pleasant valley, a housing development is being built for the institute's staff.

Goes Abroad To Survey Refugee Plight

Henry Morgenthau Jr., general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, in leaving La Guardia Field on his first trip to Palestine, announced that during the first nine months of 1948 a total of 73,000 refugees have entered the Jewish State. The immigration is continuing at the rate of 10,000 a month, an increase of 8,500 a month over the number allowed during the mandate, he said.

Mr. Morgenthau travelled on a Trans-World Airline plane that was to take him first to Paris, where he planned to confer with officials of the Joint Distribution Committee on the plight of the many homeless persons still in Europe.

"I wish to make an on-the-spot survey of the way in which the funds contributed by American Jews are supporting large scale

He is the grandson of Mrs. S. Rosenblum, of Glace Bay, N.S., and the late Mr. Rosenblum; and of Louis Franklin, of Los Angeles, Calif., formerly of Montreal, and of the late Mrs. Franklin. There was a kiddush with about one hundred guests at the synagogue; and that evening, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin held a reception at the Montefiore Club. Receiving with them were David Robert and Martin, and Mrs. Rosenblum, who was gowned in light grey crepe, with a corsage of Sweetheart roses. Mrs. Franklin wore a deep grey velvet dinner gown, with a purple orchid corsage. In charge of pouring were Mesdames Jack Stober, Louis Stober, A. Aisenstat, Charles Aach, and Louis M. Dorsey. Flowers were used for decoration. Max Rosenblum, of Sydney, N.S.; Mrs. Harry Kursman and Miss Rae Baumrich, of Bridgeport, Conn., were guests.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Coleman, Somerled Avenue, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their twin sons, Jack Benjamin and Simon Reeves, who were called to the Reading of the Law at Shaare Zion Synagogue. They are the brothers of Avery Barry, aged three; and grandsons of Mrs. Clara Coleman, Dollard Avenue. Receiving more than two hundred guests at kiddush, Mrs. Coleman wore a maroon-shaded woollen dressmaker suit, with a matching felt hat, shoes and bag. Mrs. Clara Coleman, the grandmother, wore a grey coat and a green dress, and a grey feathered hat. The following evening, at a dinner dance at the synagogue, Mrs. Coleman received about one hundred and sixty guests, wearing a silver-blue silk crepe dinner gown, adorned only with a gold belt; and blue gauntlets, gold-shaded shoes, and a large corsage of tiny pale yellow roses. Mrs. Coleman, the grandmother, wore a black crepe afternoon dress and corsage of American Beauty roses. There was an hors d'oeuvres table prior to the dinner and a sweet table afterwards. Hawaiian dance music was played. The table was decorated with large and baby chrysanthemums, and the small tables with blue and white candles. The bar-mitzvah cake was a five-layer, round cake, made with pastel-shaded icing, trimmed in gold-color, with the boys' names, and with an open Torah on the top. Rabbi Maurice Cohen spoke, and Cantor Gabriel Bercowits sang. Mrs. S. Sessler, of New York; Mrs. E. Grabow, Miss Laura Grabow, S. Bogin, all of Newton, N.J.; and Mr. and Mrs. S. Ram, of Liverpool, England, were present.

Mrs. Blanche Frankel, who visited her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Frankel, Strathcona Avenue, has returned to her home in Phoenix, Arizona.

Mrs. Lawrence M. Lande, Cedar Crescent, was in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Marks, Lansdowne Avenue, spent several days in New York.

Miss Shirley Gelber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Gelber, 5085 Cote St. Antoine Road, fiancee of Sam. Kaufman, son of Mrs. Abraham Kaufman, Bernard Avenue West and the late Mr. Kaufman, was entertained at a luncheon by Mrs. Gelber, at the Laurentien Hotel, at which seventy-five guests were present. Receiving with Mrs. Gelber and Miss Shirley Gelber, was Mrs. David Kwinter, of Toronto, Ont., sister of the honoree. The tables were adorned with fall flowers and candles. Mrs. B. Abrams, aunt of the bride-elect, proposed a toast in her honor.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Tanzman, of Saint John, N.B., who spent a week in Montreal, at the Mount Royal Hotel, visited with the former's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Nat. Tanzman, Park Avenue, who entertained for them at dinner at the Bucharest, and also, at dinner at home.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Barr, 5510 Stirling Avenue, entertained at a dinner party in honor of their nephew and niece, Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Greenberg, of North Bergen, N.J. Present were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fudenberg, and granddaughter, Susan Doreen, of Brooklyn, N.Y.; and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Leiberson, Van Horne Avenue.

Mrs. J. Abrams, Esplanade Avenue, entertained at a tea in honor of Miss Jennie Sussman, St. Dominique Street, fiancee of Percy Robbins, of Hamilton, Ont., and a bride-elect of October 31. There were about fifteen guests present. Mrs. Abrams wore a brown gabardine suit, with a corsage of red roses; and the bride-elect was in a black crepe dress, with gray accessories.

Mrs. A. Uditsky, sister of the bride, Arcade Street, gave a farewell party with about twenty guests, in celebration of the forthcoming marriage of her sister, Miss Jennie Sussman, St. Dominique Street, to Percy Robbins, of Hamilton, Ont., whose marriage takes place on October 31. Mrs. Uditsky received in a grape-coloured crepe dress; with Miss Sussman in a royal-blue dress, with black accessories.

Several hundred babies and their mothers are among the 12,000 "persons of military age" still detained behind barbed wire for more than a year, Moshe Brachman, Director of the Cyprus Refugee Welfare Committee, reported that in view of the deterioration of conditions in the camp, the welfare committee has been forced to resume its monetary and other assistance programs. Babies are born at the rate of about 100 weekly in the Cyprus detention camps, reports Yehashua Leibner, assistant director of the JDC on Cyprus.

Sanford Bolender was named director of the Jewish Center Division of the National Jewish Welfare Board, receiving the congratulations of his father who is executive director of the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Association of Washington Heights, in New York. The son will be in charge of planning and carrying out the Jewish Welfare Board's program for the 321 Jewish community centers and Y.M.-Y.W.H.A. groups affiliated with the board.

Only In America And Once In A Blue Moon

Sol Bloom was five when his immigrant family moved from Chicago to San Francisco because it was "cheaper to take a train than to pay rent" (1875 fare from Burlington, Iowa, to Oakland, Calif., $8). Sol was six when he went to school for a day, and six when he quit school forever, for want of money to buy school books. At seven he started regular work, at $1.25 for a seventy-two-hour week. At eight he entered show business as an extra in a David Belasco play. At fifteen he became assistant treasurer of San Francisco's Alcazar Theater, at $50 a week, and bought a Prince Albert coat and a black eyeglass ribbon to maintain the dignity of his position. At seventeen he was earning $20,000 a year. At twenty-one he demanded $50,000 a year to manage the Midway Plaisance at the Chicago world's fair — and got it.

Ten years later Sol Bloom owned eighty chain stores, had a large music publishing business, dabbled in theatrical production and bought and sold New York City real estate. Twenty years later still his telephone rang. Tammany's Mr. Murphy was on the wire, informing Mr. Bloom that he was to run for Congress. He had been chosen, he says, because he was "an amiable and solvent Jew," but his campaign manager objected to Sol Bloom's Prince Albert coat. He discarded it—but not the black eyeglass ribbon—and he was elected. He has been re-elected every two years since, and in 1938 became chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives, and a good one, largely because he devoted himself to the job with the eye for detail which had built his varied business career, says Lewis Gannett, in the New York Herald Tribune. In part also, because, as Mr. Bloom says, he had become a showman at the age of seven and remained a showman [illegible] and it doesn't happen to many her Few people anywhere have Mr. Bloom's sheer physical vitality. He says he cannot remember ever sleeping more than six hours at a stretch, and that he never has been really sick in his life. He says he never had time to play games; but obviously business was to him a game that he loved playing, and he tells with high spirits of the tricks by which he made his first dollars. The best single promotion idea he ever had, he thinks, was his copyright vigil in December, 1899. It led to big advertisements in January, 1900:

of copyrights will be issued during the century which commenced with the present year . . .

In line with our usual policy of being first, we have secured

SOL BLOOM, The Progressive Publisher

It was all fun, from leading the claque in the old San Francisco Theater through the Algerian Village and the so-called ostrich-egg omelettes at the world's fair in 1893 to turning a normally Republican Congressional district in New York City into a Democratic stronghold.

In Congress, as in business, Mr. Bloom devoted himself to making friends. Issues apparently meant little to him at first. His major function in his first Congressional decade was his management of the George Washington bicentennial celebration of 1932, a showman's and a business man's job — it showed a profit. Will Rogers wrote, "You are the only guy ever made a party run nine months, and you did it in dry times. Sol, you made this whole country Washington-conscious." Herbert Hoover had appointed Sol Bloom to that job, but in the succeeding years the Congressman devoted the same incredible energy to support of President Roosevelt's foreign policy. People who had begun by thinking of him as a clown, as he obviously often did himself, began to discover new qualities in the old clown. Sol Bloom was far from being the [illegible] who signed the United Nations Charter in the name of the United States in 1945.

Sol Bloom's autobiography is written in a mixture of styles — sometimes as a straight showman, sometimes with the oily touch of a professional master of ceremonies, sometimes in deadly seriousness and sometimes with a disarming wonder at his own amazing life story. "Some people have portraits of all their ancestors hanging in their houses," he says. "My only ancestors of which I know very much are my mother and my father," and the only portrait he has of them is on the pass he obtained for them to the world's fair of 1893. That, too, is an American symbol, and Sol Bloom's is a dramatic American story.

A NOISE ANNOYS

The human nervous system can accustom itself to a steady constant noise like the sound of surf on a beach or the distant hum of traffic. It is the unexpected, unnecessary noises that upset our well-being and may contribute to physical or mental disturbances. Unfortunately the person making a noise very often does not suffer. It is the unwilling listeners who are irritated and inconvenienced by loud, unnecessary noise, particularly during the night.

Sees Many Jews Among N.Y. Pagans

New York has become a "pagan city," with nearly half of its population having no organized religious affiliation, the Rev. Dr. Kenneth D. Miller, president of the New York City Mission Society, declared.

"At least 3,650,000 persons more than 14 years old are not accounted for in the organized religious life of this city," he asserted.

These findings, he said, are contained in the report of a survey, which the society will issue as a pamphlet, "New York — Wistful Pagans," in three weeks. Dr. Miller noted that with the deduction of children under 15 there were in the city 6,400,000 persons "old enough to have made a church commitment." Yet he found "less than 1,500,000 of this age group claimed in official Catholic statistics, Protestant churches with some 670,000 on their books and Eastern Orthodox churches reporting about 50,000."

"At a liberal estimate," he added, "only 600,000 Jews have an active connection with a synagogue or temple."

Dr. Miller cited the lack of "uniformly faithful participation" even among those on the rolls of the churches.

"In our Protestant churches," he noted, "only 35 per cent go to church on Sundays. Jewish leaders confess that most of their synagogues are sparsely attended except at the high holidays."

Dr. Miller analyzed the Catholic situation with special reference to Italians.

"They are climbing the economic ladder fast," he said, "making good citizens and good Americans. Italians are all supposed to be Catholics; most of them say, 'I'm a Catholic.' However, Roman Catholic authorities would be first to admit that far all too many Italians, some say the majority, the church exists for baptism, confirmation, marriage and funeral service only. These fellow citizens are growing up to be 'good Americans' but without any vital place for religion in their lives. In view of our heritage, a good American without religion is a new and startling phenomenon."

The popular conception that all Negroes are highly religious is "a fallacy," Dr. Miller contended. The Mission Society is conducting an intensive program through its Harlem unit and with Puerto Ricans in the East Harlem section.

"Although Harlem is dotted with churches," Dr. Miller said, "a recent survey showed that 40 per cent of the children in a certain area are receiving no religious instruction whatsoever. New York has 'cured' many Negroes of their religion."

Discussing the lack of religious education among children, he cited two public schools with an aggregate of 1,600 pupils, of whom only 600 were receiving religious instruction. The Mission Society now is conducting a part-time program of religious instruction to help remedy this situation.

Declaring that "New York's paganism is a reflection of the secularism and materialism of our day," Dr. Miller outlined how the 135-year-old Mission Society was [illegible] program to [illegible] conditions.

"The society believes that the task of gaining the interest of the 'wistful pagans' of New York is too great for any one religious organization or any single denomination," he said. "Therefore it is promoting and administering a number of interdenominational projects in which a united approach is being made by the Protestant churches in a given area."

The Gabbe Reflects On Prestige

By A. Mishriker

Mr. Knack was pleased to be in the train. A week in Johannesburg was quite enough. What a rush, what a noise! True, Johannesburg was Johannesburg, and Gaapdorp was Gaapdorp, but he'd rather be Gabbe of Gaapdorp anytime. Mr. Knack felt sure that even Mrs. Knack was pleased to be going back. He eyed his dear wife who lay sprawled on the seat of the Blue Train compartment, her eyes shut, her triple-chin quavering with the movements of the train; she was emitting short, staccato snores.

Mr. Knack looked at the passing scenery, but failed to notice it, for he was thinking. Suddenly, the door of the compartment slid open and the ticket examiner appeared. Mr. Knack pursed his lips, sat up straight, allowed his corporation to extend and slightly narrowed his eyes—in short, Mr. Knack adopted his official presidential appearance. At such times he felt sure that he looked important, that he looked every inch the Gabbe of Gaapdorp. With a regal gesture, he proferred the tickets to the examiner, and without deigning to say a word, dismissed the official with a slight nod of his head—a gesture he copied from the Royal Tour newsreels.

The door closed behind the examiner, and Mr. Knack continued with his reflections of the all-important communal affairs of Gaapdorp, which had been left to their fate for a whole week without the guiding hand of the President. He was always loath to rely on the Committee. Such small people, so concerned with their own little affairs and not worrying at all about the prestige of Gaapdorp. If you left it to them Gaapdorp wouldn't even be on the map. It was not for nothing that Mrs. Knack would tell him again and again: "Jacob, Gaapdorp is what it is because you are there, without you, Gaapdorp ... isn't it so?" "And between ourselves!" — she would continue — "what do you want Committees for," ... Well, wasn't she right? Who wanted Committees?

Mr. Knack, after having been the President of the Gaapdorp Hebrew Congregation, the Zionist Society, the Helping Hand, etc., etc., for the past 20 years, felt like a despot of old. Truly, how could Mr. Klein, the secretary, and Mr. Klotz, the "honourable" treasurer (a nice title "honourable," reflected Mr. Knack, he must call himself "Honourable President," not just "President") take his, Mr. Knack's place, even for one week. They were dock nobodies. How could they compare themselves to him?

But, on the other hand, what did it matter — let there be a Committee! Did they have a mind of their own? He needed someone to write letters, so Mr. Klein was doing it. To-day Mr. Klein, tomorrow Mr. Klotz, secretaries come and go, but Mr. Knack, the Gabbe, remains forever. By the way, if it wasn't for the spelling, he'd not need a secretary at all. Oi, the spelling! Mr. Knack sighed. So much to do on his return and all for the community.

First, he had to settle a score with Reverend Fenster. A cheek of the Reverend's wife to slight Mrs. Knack! On the morning they had left for Johannesburg, Mrs. Fenster wasn't even at the station to see them off. Mrs. Knack noticed it immediately. She had, kein ain hore, an eye of an eagle, and when Mr. Knack mentioned it to the Reverend at the station, Mr. Fenster swore by all that was holy that his wife wasn't well, that she was in bed, etc., etc., but Mrs. Knack couldn't be fooled. The cheek of a Reverend's wife not to come to the station to see them off!

He was sure that Rev. Fenster felt that he had displeased him and he'd still hear about it upon their return. The recollection of the Reverend's anxious look as the train pulled out gave Mr. Knack particular pleasure. He had another grudge against Rev. Fenster. It was even more than a grudge. Mrs. Klotz told his wife that Rev. Fenster told Mrs. Cohen that his, Mr. Knack's son, was the worst boy at Cheder and that he had a farshtopte kop. The cheek of it.

What was he, the Reverend, a Government School? Isn't enough that his son's school reports were not so oi-oi-oi, must Rev. Fenster also pass opinions? So his son won't be a doctor. One doctor in the family was enough. Thank God, he had managed to marry off his Rose to a doctor in town. So his son will be a businessman. Very bad!

Then there was the matter of the forthcoming elections, and who would be the next vice-president. He personally liked Mr. Marantz. But Mrs. Knack hated the sight of Mrs. Marantz, and, to make matters worse, just the other night Mrs. Knack lost three pounds to Mrs. Marantz at a card evening. His Clara felt that Mr. Klotz, the "honourable" treasurer, should be the next vice-president, Mr. Klotz and nobody else. Why? Why Mr. Klotz? — Because Clara wanted Mr. Klotz! And what was the difference who the next vice-president would be? Besides, Mrs. Klotz was at the station and brought a basket of fruit, which was very nice of her, whatever one may say.

Further, everything seemed well. Business was not bad, although not as good as a few years ago, still one shouldn't grumble. Mr. Knack glanced at his watch—it was time for a bite. Carefully he reached for a small case on the rack above his wife's head. He was particularly pleased that they had the compartment to themselves, for now he could enjoy his rye bread and garlic bolony. He opened the case, helped himself to a generous slice of the real Warschauer Wurscht and a piece of bread and bit into it with the delight of a true gourmet.

Mr. Knack felt very happy, indeed. The food was good and tasty. Mrs. Knack was peacefully asleep and in three hours' time he would be back home, back in Gaapdorp, where everybody knew him, loved him, revered him, respected and feared him. By the evening, the reins of the Gaapdorp Hebrew Congregation would be in good hands again.

WHAT PRICE
DEMOCRACY?

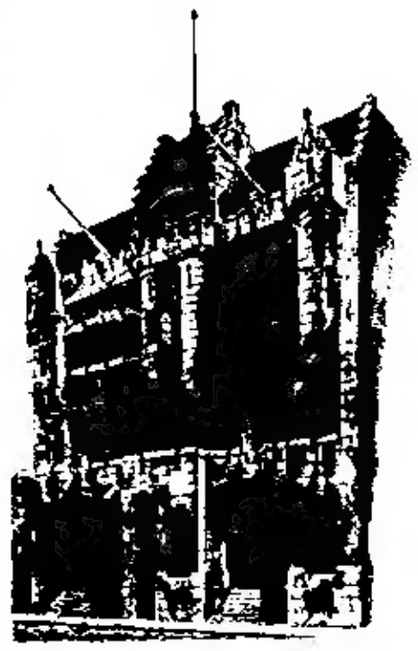
Democracy is without price . . . no one can ever take it for granted or assume it is paid for in full. It is an inheritance we are duty bound to pass on . . . not only to the next generation, but to our fellow men everywhere who have yet to enjoy its full benefits.

Democracy grew from a great ideal . . . that all men are born free and equal and are deserving of the same privileges. It can live on only if we constantly strive to fulfill this ideal and protect the priceless freedoms won.

Moderation is one of the chief safeguards of democracy. By being moderate in our thinking, in our actions, and in our pleasures, we are living democratically.

As The House of Seagram has so often stated, by being moderate in all things, including the enjoyment of whisky, we are acting for the common good.

Men who Think of Tomorrow
Practice Moderation Today!



THE HOUSE OF SEAGRAM

DO THEY HATE THE JEWS?

By Joseph Leftwich

As the conflict over the future of Palestine goes on the tendency grows in the Yishuv and generally among Zionists to interpret the British attitude as hatred of the Jews. And it brings in them as a reaction hatred of the British. Britain is becoming regarded as an anti-Semitic country, the most anti-Semitic country in the world. Every step taken by the British is seen as an act of war, aiming at Jewish extermination. As Hitler's Germany was, so Britain is now. And since the present enemy is always worse than the past, Britain is worse than Germany ever was. Frustration is a terrible distorting mirror.

Nothing is more ugly than a Jew who shuts his eyes to the fact of Jew-hatred, and in the midst of it, while other Jews are being humiliated and murdered, accepts some kind of exemption for himself, because he is "different." But to decide that, because Britain is pursuing a policy in Palestine and the Middle East which is hostile to the Yishuv, Britain has become that which Mosley wanted, is no less wrong-headed.

The life and the freedom to live of the Jews in England is an important Jewish consideration. "Let us strive for the acquisition of Palestine by all means," Nordau said. "Its possession is the condition of our future. But let us hasten to help the tormented, individual Jew. His life, his well-being are our present. We must insist upon his being emancipated. We must exert ourselves to the utmost to obtain for him the recognition of his rights as a man and a citizen."

It is as important not to imperil his rights as a man and a citizen.

"In this Nordau and I agreed," Herzl recorded in his diaries, "that only anti-Semitism made us Jews."

What were all those thunderings of Nordau's at the Zionist Congresses against the anti-Semitism which prevailed in the countries of Europe? It [illegible] Not to add to it.

I see that the Poale Zion paper, Dos Vort, has been quoting from an article of mine to show that anti-Semitism in Britain is not as extensive as some reports have recently been suggesting. There is anti-Semitism; I suppose there always has been. But compared with what we know of anti-Semitism in Czarist Russia, the rightlessness and the pogroms, the Jewish insecurity in Roumania, the violence of anti-Jewish feelings in the France of the Dreyfus Affair, the degradation of the Jews in Hitler Germany, their removal from every position, the burning of books by Jewish authors, the destruction of paintings by Jewish artists, the dismissal of Jewish professors, the concentration camps, the spreading of anti-Semitism throughout Nazi-Occupied Europe, the cold-blooded murder of six million Jews, what is there in England today to justify a comparison with that?

I remember that when Stefan Zweig came to London he could not conceal his astonishment that no one looked at him in the streets to see whether he wore an Aryan badge. They still don't.

A South African Jew who has returned to Johannesburg reports in the South African Jewish Times there his surprise at how little anti-Jewish feeling he found in England, compared with the bitter anti-British feeling among the Jews in South Africa.

So far very few in Britain hate the Jews. So far the British Government still contains four Jewish Ministers: the Secretary of State for War, the Minister of Civil Aviation, the Minister of Town and Country Planning, and the Minister of Supply. They help to make British policy, including that in Palestine. The Secretary of State for War, Emanuel Shinwell, the son of a Polish-Jewish immigrant, who was a Whitechapel tailor, is responsible for the British military evacuation from Palestine. They may be anti-Zionist, though at least one of these Jewish Ministers claims to be a Zionist. But are they anti-Jewish?

The Tate Gallery recently held an exhibition of work by that most Jewish of artists, that most inspired by Jewish folk-art Vitebsk Jew, Marc Chagall. The streets of London were plastered with posters, reproducing a characteristic Jewish Chagall drawing, King David with his crown on his head, playing his harp. The Press was full of glowing notices of his work —"a Russian Jew, born near Vitebsk," says The Times.

Of a different kind, but equally enthusiastic were the Press notices of the appearance in London of Danny Kaye, the American Jewish comedian, a grandson of Esther Rochel Kaminska, the great Yiddish actress, who speaks of it in all his Press interviews and emphasizes that his real name is Daniel Kaminski.

Then there is Robert Kronfield, who in pre-Nazi days was Germany's pioneer glider. After Hitler, because he was a Jew, he escaped to England, became Squadron Leader Kronfield of the British Air Force, and was killed recently trying out a new secret glider. His story was the front-page heroism story in the papers. And it is not overlooked that he was a Jew, and a German Jew, who found a home in England from Germany's death camps.

It might all mean nothing, this elevating of individual Jews, if the feeling in the streets were anti-Jewish. But it isn't, to any extent that can be noticed.

This does not mean that there is no Mosley movement in England anxious to exploit any chance of spreading any anti-Semitism that is about. It was Mrs. Helen Bentwich, herself a Jewess, the wife of Professor Norman Bentwich, who, as Chairman of the Schools Committee of the London County Council, rejected the demand of some non-Jewish Councillors that schools should not be used for Mosley meetings. Her argument is the usual freedom of expression argument.

"I am keeping watch on Mosley," the Home Secretary, Mr. Chuter Ede, said in the House of Commons about this same question of Mosley meetings in the schools. "I shall not hesitate to ask for additional powers if it appears to be necessary."

And the same attitude applies to the Hebrew Legion, which has put up its posters in the streets, calling for volunteers to join the Irgun. "They claim to have 2,000 men anxious to go to Palestine, where they will fight British troops, if they are still there, and help the Arabs," was what the Home Secretary said when he was questioned about the Hebrew Legion in the House of Commons.

In the same way the whole British Press, including the official Government organ, the Daily Herald, published the attack which the Poale Zionist Labour Member of Parliament Mikardo made on the Labour Government policy in Palestine. "A dirty trick," was the headline, quoting the phrase he used about it.

You will still find plenty of freedom of expression in the British Press.

I suppose it is over-sentimental when a Jewish artist in a London Yiddish paper says that "tears of national Jewish pride stand in my eyes at the honour conferred on the whole Jewish people by the exhibition of Chagall's works in the Tate Gallery." But it is understandable in any Jew who remembers Goebbels's crusade against everything of the "Jewish spirit."

How tranquil Herzl felt in England, where, but for his parents' unwillingness to move from their home, he would have settled. "These are the people, this is the milieu that I need to feel at ease," he wrote in his diary. "I can understand the Jews becoming assimilated in England. If I lived in England I would probably be a Jingo."

People are not so complacent today. We would not repeat today what Herzl quotes Mrs. Austin, the wife of the Poet Laureate as saying to him, "In England there is no anti-Semitism and there never can be any."

We have too fresh in our memories the Mosley Blackshirts, and their marches through the streets of London, and the anti-Semitic rowdyism. It may flare up again. But it is not a powerful movement now. So far, there is no feeling yet in Britain against the Jews. They do not hate us.

And the position of the Jews in is a Jewish position, which must not be lightly endangered. With all the Zionist fervour there is no prospect of a large Chalutzic movement from England. Not unless anti-Semitism drives us out. And if that happens, "If British Jewry succumbs to anti-Semitism, it will be a disaster to world Jewry," as Professor Brodetsky declared a few weeks ago. He has just launched as President of the Board of Deputies a campaign against the anti-Semitic agitation in England. The object is "to stem the tide of anti-Jewish feeling. To maintain good relations between Jew and Gentile."

Do the British hate the Jews? "This Conference of British Zionists," reads one of the resolutions adopted by the English Zionist Conference "deeply regrets the deterioration of relations between Great Britain and the Jewish people, and believes it to be its duty to do everything possible to restore this good relationship."

Was Authority On New York

Albert Ulmann, leading authority on the history of New York City, died in New York at his home, 15 Central Park West, at the age of 87.

A retired stockbroker, he spent nearly his entire lifetime writing and talking about the city in which he was born on July 2, 1861. He was the author of "A Landmark History of New York," first published in 1901 by D. Appleton & Co., and revised in subsequent editions, the last of which appeared in 1939.

He also had written "Tales of Old New York", "New Yorkers From Stuyvesant to Roosevelt," and "Maiden Lane, the Story of a Single Street." He was a founder and for many years the historian of the Maiden Lane Society.

Mr. Ulmann had written hundreds of letters to newspapers, including The New York Times, on matters concerning the city.

After graduating from City College in 1881, Mr. Ulmann got a job with Albert Lorsch & Co., a Maiden Lane jewelry-importing firm. In 1884 he founded The Manufacturing Jeweler, a monthly trade publication, in Providence. One of the first articles he wrote for the magazine was a three-part history of Maiden Lane.

Soon after Mr. Ulmann sold the magazine and returned to New York, where, with the late Alonzo Rothschild, he founded another trade publication, The Jewelers' Weekly. He continued his interest in the city's history, and decided to write a book about New York that would interest children. Out of this plan grew "A Landmark History of New York."

He abandoned the trade paper to join the stock brokerage firm of Sulzbacher, Granger & Co., 111 Broadway, where he became a senior partner. He retired in 1938 but kept a room in the firm's office, which he visited almost daily. While he was associated with the firm he published "Money talks," a simplified exposition of the country's financial system.

Mr. Ulmann was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, the New York Historical Society and the Fairview Country Club.

A widower, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Samuel.

First professional employee in the YMHAs was the librarian. The library of the New York YMHA (oldest existing Center in the Country, which was established in 1874), opened in 1886, became the nucleus of the Aguilar Free Public Library, which in turn became a part of the New York Public Library. Rev. Isaac Leeser's library was given to the Philadelphia YMHA in 1878 and was catalogued by the young Cyrus Adler, later to be one of the leaders of American Jewry.

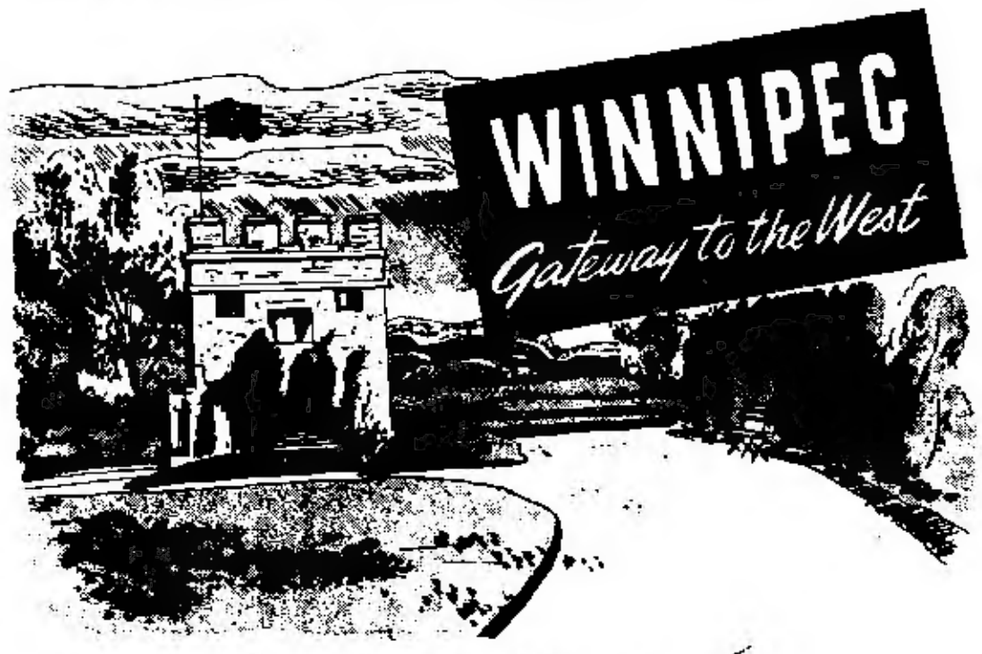
CANADA FROM COAST TO COAST



Gateway of old Fort Garry . . . original Fort built in 1822, rebuilt 1835. The North Gate is all that remains of the historic fort.

Here are the basic ingredients of the romance of the West. This lusty, beauteous, pioneer-spirited community, funnel to the world's bread basket is the city through which poured the thousands of intrepid land seekers, fanning out to break the fertile soil, build for Canada the multi-million acred grain and cattle empire that is the Prairies today.

In the city, proper, are the most spacious railway yards in the world under one system. It is one of the greatest grain centres in the world. Highly civilized architecture distinguishes its mammoth department stores and its gracious spired churches. PRIZE CARROT CAKE

one and one-quarter cups sugar three-quarters cup oil three-quarters cup chopped nuts
one-half cup raisins
one cup grated carrots
two teaspoons baking powder
two cups flour
pinch salt
one-quarter teaspoon baking soda
lemon

Mix together the eggs, and the sugar. Add the oil. Sift the dry ingredients and add to the first mixture. Then add nuts and raisins. Lastly add the carrots and the grated rind of the lemon, and one teaspoon lemon juice. Bake in an eight- by ten-inch rectangular cake tin which has been greased and floured, for forty-five minutes in a 350-degree oven.

CHEESE CREPLACH

one-quarter teaspoonful salt
one and one-half cups flour
three eggs
two glasses of lukewarm water

Mix eggs, water, flour, and a pinch of salt for batter. Knead into dough and roll out into thin sheet. Cut in four inch squares. Mix one-quarter teaspoonful salt with the cheese and press through sieve to make smooth. Place a teaspoonful of cheese on each square. Fold into triangle. Pinch together forming a pie-crust edge. Place in boiling water and let boil till it simmers on top, then take out and run cold water over creplach. Fry slightly. Before serving drop one-eighth pound of butter on the creplach and shake well. Serve with sour cream.

Six Israeli Police To Train In N.Y.

Six key police officers of the State of Israeli will arrive in New York within a month to take a course of training in the Police Department Academy.

Ezekiel Sahar, Inspector General of the provisional government of Israel and head of the Israeli police, wrote to Mayor William O'Dwyer that his new department "is already overburdened with serious problems and onerous responsibilitity" and said that training in New York "would be of inestimable value to the progressive development of Israel." He said the men "could then bring to Israel the same high standards of law enforcement which have brought such distinction to the City of New York."

The letter was presented to the Mayor at City Hall by Captain Yehuda Koppel and Sergeant Rica Menache, members of the Israeli armed forces. Police Commissioner Arthur W. Wallander was present at the brief ceremony, with Edward Silver, chief assistant District Attorney of Kings County, and Nathaniel Kaplan, secretary of the Board of Education.

"We will do everything possible to help these men," Mayor O'Dwyer said, and dictated a letter of approval.

Ten silver mezuzoth have been affixed on the door panels of the officers of the Israeli Mission in Washington. Rabbi Joshua Plaven, dean of the Washington Rabbinate, blessed the offices and placed the mezuzoth in a ceremony attended by Elishu Epstein, the Israeli envoy, and other members of the Israeli mission. The mezuzoth were made in Jerusalem.

Finds That Hebrew Unifies Israeli Groups

Maurice Margulies of New York, former secretary of the Zionist Organization of America, noted the [illegible] Palestine in ten years. Mr. Margulies credited the use of Hebrew as the national language for the success of such integration.

"Hebrew has really struck roots and its future is assured," he said. "It is the unifying force of the people, and if it had not been for the language, the people would have remained Jews from Germany, Jews from Poland, or Jews from the four corners of the world. Today they are one."

He found Hebrew spoken in Palestine as much as English is spoken in New York. This, alongside the benefits derived from its spreading usage, impressed him, he said, "more than the fact that twelve daily newspapers have already been founded in Tel Aviv or more than the fact that there is an expanding live theatre and all the other cultural developments of a country."

Mr. Margulies, who is a member of the Executive Committee for Progressive Zionism within the [illegible] political counterpart of the American committee.

FREE PROTECTION

Immunization will protect Canada's children from diphtheria, whooping cough and smallpox. Toxoid affords practically 100% protection against death from diphtheria and whooping cough vaccine provides excellent protection against this infection. Immunization is free. It is available for the protection of everyone. Failure to immunize children exposes them to the danger of serious illness or death.

BALANCED LIVING

Mental health experts say that mental upsets often follow serious bodily illnesses. They suggest that in order to help maintain good mental health it is advisable to sidestep needless worry and fatigue. It is best to use leisure time to advantage and to keep physical health at its peak if proper emotional stability is to be maintained.

ATTENTION TORONTO JEWRY

At a joint meeting of the Toronto Rabbis and the Hebrew Butcher Workers Union held at the Labour Lyceum, on Tuesday evening, October 26th, it was unanimously agreed that both bodies will cooperate and do everything in their power to enforce the observance of the Sabbath by all the Toronto Jewish butcher stores.

A second joint meeting of the Hebrew Butcher Workers Union and the Toronto rabbis will take place on Monday, November 1st, to determine what action to take against those Jewish butcher stores who may fail to carry through the observance of the Sabbath day.

SURE PROTECTION

Every growing boy or girl needs 400 international units of vitamin D every day, all year round, for protection against rickets. Obtainable in many forms including cod or halibut liver oil, vitamin D is cheap, sure protection. Ordinary diet, even when supplemented by sunbaths, cannot usually provide sufficient vitamin D for a child's needs.

Hadassah To Ask U.S. Back Palestine Policy

American Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, Inc., will ask the Government to "stick by" its former Palestine policy by insisting that the Negeb area remain in Israel, Mrs. Samuel W. Halprin, Hadassah president, predicted in New York.

Mrs. Halprin, who also is the only woman member of the executive board of the World Zionist Organization, predicted that this action would be taken by the 250,000 members of Hadassah when the organization holds its thirty-fourth annual convention, November 5, in Atlantic City.

This will be the first national gathering of Hadassah, which has chapters in every state except Iowa, since the United Nations General Assembly decided on November 29 that Palestine should be partitioned.

Mrs. Halprin said that the creation of the new Jewish state of Israel meant the "beginning" of Hadassah's real work. Both Hadassah and the World Zionist Organization, agencies that had campaigned zealously for the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine, will remain in operation —although their first dream has been realized — to assist Israel, Mrs. Halprin declared.

The president of Hadassah outlined the assistance required of these agencies by the new state, assistance that Hadassah, for its part, will continue through a 1949 budget of $5,935,000, which is expected to be approved at the convention.

Mrs. Halprin said Hadassah must continue and expand its medical organization in Israel. Of the 1949 budget of $5,936,000 to be presented to the Hadassah convention, $2,500,000 has been earmarked for the organization's medical program. Last year Hadassah spent $3,000,000 in health work out of its budget of $7,000,000.

Land purchase in Israel was another program in which the Israeli Government needed the help of its Zionist supporters, Mrs. Halprin asserted. The Hadassah convention will consider allocating $750,000 of its next year's budget toward the purchase of land.

Belgian Plaque Honors Jewish Dead

Mayor O'Dwyer, of New York, accepted from Jacques de Thier, Belgian Consul General, a bronze plaque from the Belgian Government, to be placed eventually in the American memorial to the 8,000,000 European Jews slain in World War II. The decoration was presented at ceremonies held in City Hall Plaza to commemorate the first anniversary of the dedication of the memorial site at Riverside Drive and Eighty-third Street.

The memorial will honor also the unknown soldier of the battle of the Warsaw ghetto in Poland. Awards similar to that received by the Mayor were presented last year by the Governments of France, the Netherlands, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

During the ceremonies messages were read from President Truman, former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and United States Senators Robert F. Wagner and Irving M. Ives. In accepting the plaque the Mayor told about 1,000 persons that the martyred Jews of Europe were exterminated because of their religion, but will be remembered because of the free state of Israel and the freedom and dignity of the human spirit.

Elisha Epstein, head of the Israel mission in Washington, declared that the death of the 6,000,000 Jews must not remain meaningless but must be translated into a stronger Israel standing on unshakeable foundations.

Touro Celebrates First Year As U.S. Shrine

Henry L. McCarty, executive director of the National Citizens Council on Civil Rights, sponsored by the American Jewish Committee and the Anti-Defamation League, delivered the keynote address at the first anniversary of the Touro Synagogue's dedication as a national historic shrine at Newport, R.I. Judge Joseph M. Proskauer and Gov. Herbert H. Lehman are members of the Board of the Society of Friends of the synagogue-shrine which sponsored the celebration.

Dedicated by the Newport Jewish community in 1763, Touro has the distinction of being the oldest synagogue building in the United States. It was here that George Washington delivered the famous statement embodying his concept of religious liberty.

"It is now no more that toleration is spoken of, as if it was by the indulgence of one class of people that another enjoy the exercise of their inherent natural rights. For happily the Government of the United States . . . gives to bigotry no sanction."

In his address Mr. McCarthy reiterated that concept by declaring: "Civil Rights here have a mighty influence in moulding the pattern of human rights for all mankind . . . to overlook any violation of civil rights in our own backyard is to desert the cause of civilization and to risk the failure of all our hopes."

immigration into Israel from the DP centers and other parts of Europe," he said. "I want to see the refugees as they come off the ships in Haifa and Tel Aviv, I want to see the reception centers for the new immigrants and the new settlements and towns being built to house the newcomers entering Israel."

Mr. Morgenthau is stopping at Cyprus on his way from Paris to Haifa, to inspect the condition of the 12,000 displaced Jews who are living in internment camps on the island. In Israel he is conferring with President Chaim Weizmann, Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion and other Government officials.

The UJA general chairman was accompanied by Nathan Straus, president of radio station WMCA, who will arrange for the first direct broadcasts from Israel to the United States.

Mr. Straus said that within a week of his arrival in Israel he hoped to have daily five to six-minute news broadcasts short-waved to the United States from Tel Aviv. He travelled as an accredited radio correspondent and will remain in Israel for a month.

SCIENTIST HELP

About a mile from the institute lives Dr. Chaim Weizmann, who is a happy man these days with two loves and two masters — the new state, of which he has become first President, and science, which still holds his interest. A trench runs across Dr. Weizmann's garden, a reminder that the front is not far away anywhere in this tiny country.

Dr. Weizmann's vigor of movement and speech these days belie his 74 years and recent ill health. His sister, Dr. Anna Weizmann, who also is a chemist, believes there is no medicine so good for him as simply living in Rehovoth. His eyesight still is bad, but only occasionally does he need to take the arm of an escort.

Affairs of state permitting, Dr. Weizmann drives to his office at Daniel Sieff Institute each morning about 10 o'clock. Sieff Institute was named for the late Daniel Sieff, son of an English family that originally financed Dr. Weizmann's idea for a center of science in Palestine. It will continue its work on organic chemistry while Weizmann Institute will be devoted to biophysics, physical chemistry and applied mathematics.

Dr. Weizmann says he used the "double tragedy of young Sieff's death and Hitler's coming to power" to realize his idea. He had resigned a presidency of the World Zionist Congress after the defeat of his policies at the 1932 congress.

"I rented a small laboratory in London and began work with one assistant," he says. "Then Hitler came to power, and a great many young Jewish chemists found themselves in the street. I took them into my small laboratory and decided then to build up a place in Palestine."

About this time Hitler dismissed Dr. David Bergman from his job as assistant chief of Kaiser Wilhelm Institute in Berlin, and Dr. Weizmann brought the brilliant, young German scientist to Rehovoth to take charge of Sieff Institute.

The Weizmann Institute is being staffed mainly with young men from the United States, Canada and Britain. They get practically no money—the equivalent of about $6 a month—but are attracted by opportunities that are not available in older institutes.

"It is a peculiar kind of pioneering that we are doing here—scientific pioneering," Dr. Weizmann says. "This is the finest thing of its kind between Paris and India."

Secret Faults

Text: "Who can discern errors?
Clear Thou me from hidden faults." (Psalm 19: 13)

The secret world of our life is the concern of modern psychology and psychiatry and it has ever been the great concern of religion. Today, through the technique of confession, we verbalize our inner world and recognize that God knows all our secrets.

What man is there who can claim perfection? This is the day when the most successful confess that despite all their achievements there is an inner voice which speaks to them of goals sought and never reached. We confess our failures with the purpose of improving life and seek the help of God to make our life more worthy for ourselves and fellow man.

We confess on the Day of Atonement that the secret world which we suppress during the year is inhabited by selfishness and malice. We recognize that we must battle with the evil impulses of our heart and seek the triumph of the good over evil.

We are entering upon the most dangerous age of all human history. Everyone knows by now that science in its progress has brought mankind to the edge of sudden death. Biological warfare are atomic destruction may already be a death sentence upon us. Why is not the average man frightened and worried by this dreadful fact? Why are we not besieging statesmen and the United Nations Organization and raise aloud the demand that war be no more? All this strange emotional lethargy points to the terrible sin of indifference so characteristic of even the nice people.

Should we Jews alone confess our sins on this day? Utter blank indifference is this world's deepest sin. It is in the world of indifferent people that national, racial and religious prejudices flourish. It is the nice indifferent people who make all horrors and wretchedness possible by their unfunctioning niceness, by their pride in the little they know, by their laziness and neutrality. These still-born of the world are the real villains in all recent tragedies. They have no small share in what happened to six million Jews slaughtered by the Nazis.

We are comforted by the fact that at the World Conference of Churches held in Amsterdam, Christendom expressed a feeling of guilt towards the Jews as a result of the tragic annihilation of large Jewish communities in Europe. But the hour has arrived for decisive action on the part of both church and synagogue in order that religious people may truly flesh the teachings of brotherhood in every day living.

Healing must replace hatred all over the world so that the round earth may be our home. We need to have faith in people, compassion for people, whether they have white faces, brown faces or black faces. If the globe is to function as a unit, a faith must develop based on the acceptance that no nation, no religion, no group is better or worse than any other. Let us therefore, pray for the salvation of the United Nations which seemingly is rushing towards the tragic fate which befell the League of Nations.

Tradition calls upon us to reflect upon death and not to suppress the reality of death. That is the reason why we are called upon to visit the resting place of our dear departed, and that is why we observe a special memorial service in loving tribute to our departed. Our ritual dramatizes for us the fact that death is the inevitable goal for each and every one of us. However, there is a tendency on the part of all of us to negate the reality of death. It is supposed to come always to the other fellow but not to us. And yet death is always around the corner.

Holy Day emphasis on death is meant to drive home to us the pricelessness of life and to make us realize that because life is brief and ends in death that we cherish the gift of life and make it a noble adventure for ourselves and our dear ones. All of us, no matter how long we might live, must realize that we have but little time to invest in kindness, in compassion and in goodness, so that in our going from this earth, we may leave an inspiring memory and a noble example for those who are to follow us.

Let us not, therefore, waste our years in idleness, unkindness and brotherlessness and in bitterness. Let us consider each day a perfect gift from God and make that day beautiful and meaningful. Because life is a passing shadow we must pray that our years on earth be cherished as precious and made noble.

Thus, with the ancient Psalmist, we pray: "Clear Thou, O God, us from hidden faults" and give us the strength to rise above our inadequacy, to conquer our inner malice, and, last but not least, grant us the wisdom to count our days and make them meaningful for ourselves and those with whom we come in contact.

REPORTS WOMEN

lieved of the care of their children during working hours, in the day nurseries that we build and support. To give them a feeling of independence, we arrange for them to pay rent when they start to work. We also maintain family life by letting the children go home to their mothers after the day's work."

In the Bet Olot at Petah Tikvah near Tel Aviv, the women operate a huge dining room which is open to people in the town. The kitchen also supplies 170 meals daily for soldiers at a convalescent hospital near by. At its head is a Brooklyn member of Pioneer Women, Zippora Robbins. There are also sewing rooms where uniforms for soldiers, doctors and nurses are made. At the Sewing School in Hadera, north of Tel Aviv, run by the organization, Mrs. Goldstein was presented with a beautiful silk blouse embroidered with silver thread, which was made by the refugee women there.

"Often when people have been evacuated from a town, the Israeli government has called upon our organization to take care of the women and children," Mrs. Goldstein related. In Jerusalem, we are housing a group of evacuees in the cellars of the French Rathesbone school and monastery. The fourteen cows, saved from their large herd have been fenced in the yard, and give enough milk for themselves and some of the hospitals of the city. The place is spotlessly clean and the children are well cared for. Everyone has her appointed task and the life of the settlement they formerly occupied is carried on as closely as possible. In Haifa, the government has given us two buildings in a former Arab section where we have opened a day nursery for 150 children and a club for working women."

At Petah Tikvah, Mrs. Goldstein participated in the corner-stone laying of the 18th children's home, which Pioneer Women have erected in Israel. This is part of a building program of 26 such institutions begun in 1946. She also dedicated the building known as Omna, in Haifa, which houses 200 orphans of the war, ranging in age from three months to three years. This three-story structure is considered the finest institution of its kind in the country. It also has facilities for the training of nurses. It was erected with funds contributed by the Canadian clubs of Pioneer Women.

"While I visited Omna, an air raid alert was sounded, and I watched the babies being safely taken down into the shelter," Mrs. Goldstein recalled. "The berths are arranged in three tiers, to save space. Through it all, a workman outside kept putting finishing touches on the building, apparently indifferent to the danger."

"Without the Moatzat Hapoalot which does this great variety of social welfare work with funds contributed by Pioneer Women here, the Israeli war effort would not have been possible," she emphasized. "We have trained women for the jobs in war factories thus releasing men for active service, and take care of their children. We have also turned over one of our farms for the training of officers in Chen, the Women's Auxiliary Army."

Mrs. Goldstein commented on the fact that the participation of women in government had not kept pace with their activities in other fields. There were only two women in high government positions — Golda Myerson, Israeli Ambassador to the U.S.S.R., and Beba Idelson, head of the Moatzat Hapoalot, who is a member of Parliament.

She met the heads of the Israeli Cabinet, and drove back to Tel Aviv from Jerusalem with Moshe Shertok, Israeli Foreign Minister. She attended the reception to Mrs. Myerson on the eve of her departure for the Soviet Union and, one to James G. McDonald, U.S. envoy to Israel.

The woman Zionist leader saw the immediate tasks facing Pioneer Women as three-fold: 1) to finish and expand the building program to care for the influx of immigrant women and children; 2) to raise funds to improve the buildings which have been turned over by the government; and 3) to redeem a large tract of land in Israel on which they can build a complete group of institutions as a single unit.

TURKEY AIDS

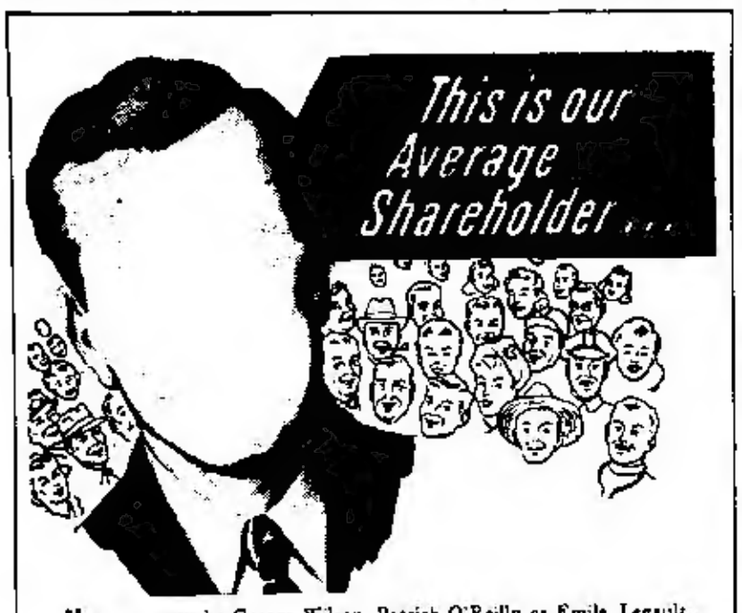
joining a Middle Eastern bloc "is a clear indication that Turkey has no intention of joining the 40,000,000 who cannot beat 800,000."

While the Arabs, who are expecting greater support from Turkey, appeared greatly shocked by Mr. Sadak's reported statement—he is known to have rejected twice Arab demands for arms—the Turkish press, which generally has followed a pro-Arab line, reacted violently against the Arab League when its members voted for Egypt instead of Turkey to become a member of the United Nations Security Council.

Another factor that may influence policy is that Palestine always has figured among the importers of Turkish goods. For five months Israel has been the leading country for imports from Turkey, says the New York Times. Trade with the Arab countries has never been of much importance to Turkey.



His name may be George Wilson, Patrick O'Reilly or Emile Legault. He may be a farmer, a lawyer, a carpenter, a real estate agent, a banker, a teacher or one of our own employees. His wife or mother might be a shareholder. He and about 5,000 other Canadians from all walks of life are the owners of Dominion Textile Company Limited. Last year, among them, they did $57,838,394 worth of business. That was the company's total income for the year.

Let's simplify it and say each Average Shareholder did $11,567.67 worth of business. That was the money he took in. Now let's look at what he spent to get that money. Here it is, roughly calculated, for the average shareholder.

Raw materials (principally raw cotton)	$5,730.85
Starches, chemicals, dyes, packing cases, other supplies and operating expenses such as repairs, fuel, power, light, pensions, insurance and other such items	$2,184.68
Amount paid to employees	$2,628.16
Taxes	$ 457.01
Money reinvested to keep the business in a stable condition	$ 178.01
Net profit received by Mr. Average Shareholder (on which he pays personal taxes too)	$ 388.96
